THE JOURNEY

We will be spending most of our time in “The Heart of the World,” one of the highest and most unique coastal mountain ranges in the world, La Sierra Nevada de Santa Marta. We will be staying at the beautiful jungle Eco-Hotel, Villa Yira.

We will open the journey of Calling In Love on Tuesday evening with some light plant medicines and a traditional Temazcal Ceremony (similar to a sweat lodge for those who aren't familiar with this native practice.) On Wednesday we begin to prepare for our plant medicine ceremony, welcoming Ayahuasca that evening. The next few days we will hike, swim, and spend time in post integration workshops to process all that we have uncovered during our ceremonial process. If you've registered, please take the time to review our Sacred Ceremonial Guide.

For those who would like or are Shabbat observant, we share a Friday night dinner at our dear friend's eco-Farm and provide the sacred space to keep traditional Shabbat observance. We close Saturday night with a fire and Circle of Words.

A highlight of our journey will be visiting the indigenous tribes of the Sierra Nevada, aka, the guardians of the territory, hiking up to their remote village, where we will spend time “giving back” to Pachamama for all she's given us. Camping out, we will speak to their spiritual Masters and absorb their wisdom.

After we get back to our home base, we welcome Master Teacher and Transpersonal Psychologist, Alex, for a transformational Holotropic Breathwork session. This experience can be as powerful as plant medicine and accesses expanded states of consciousness, rebirthing, and deep healing.

The last day we will focus on post integration because of the very deep, soulful and transformational nature of this experience, re-integration into normal life can be daunting. We are here to support your soul's journey and create a safe container to process deep ancestral and interpersonal wounds, while integrating trauma that may have surfaced to be healed. Our final evening together we celebrate with the “family” in a heart-filled cacao ceremony, sound healing and ecstatic dance party with the incredible talent from Israel, Malka Russell.
